50326

Français

La Standard Motor Company de Coventry (Grande-Bretagne) a fabriqué des tracteurs Ferguson à partir de 1946 (TE = Tractor England). En France, ils ont été assemblés par Standard Hotchkiss à Saint Denis (modèles TE-20, surnommé Petit-Gris) à partir de 1952. 1956 a été converti en une construction entièrement française (modèles FF30) jusqu'à l'arrêt de la production en 1958. Le TE-20 est équipé d'un «attelage trois points», qui a été inventé par Harry Ferguson et se retrouve dans tous les tracteurs modernes aujourd'hui. Toujours de couleur grise, il est devenu un grand succès commercial disponible en 3 largeurs: standard, étroit et vigneron. Le FF-30 était un TE-20 avec des différences mineures (forme du siège, emplacement de la batterie, moteur et châssis peints en rouge).

De TE-20 is uitgerust met een „driepuntsbok“, uitgevonden door Harry Ferguson. Dit is tegenwoordig in elke moderne tractor te vinden. Het werd een groot commercieel succes dat steeds verkrijgbaar was in grijze kleur en in 3 breedte: standaard, smal en wijnmaker. De FF-30 was een TE-20 met kleine wijzigingen (de vorm van de zetels, de opslagruimte voor de batterijen, de motor en het roodgekleurde chassis).
